Theatre club team learn to tap dance

SOME members of the Tynemouth Priory Theatre Club have been learning to tap dance for eight months in preparation for Richard Harris's Stepping Out, directed by Belle Holmes. Nine women and one man hope to become triumphant tappers with the help of Vivienne Greener, who plays Mavis, the ex-professional dancer who runs the class in the play. Vivienne, who runs her own school of dancing called Stages in Whitley Bay, will choreograph and guest perform in this production. Although she is not a novice in dance display, the role of Mavis will be her debut as an actress. The production opens on Saturday, April 13, and runs until Saturday, April 20, with curtain up at 7.30pm each night. Tickets priced at £3 for all seats can be obtained by telephoning Ken Morris 2571088 (but not on Sundays, please).
